

After the release of that Chinese dictionary, the number of published titles in the day after the 1978 Large Language Conference had increased to more than 8,000. The number of participants in these MLMs had increased to 400. The number of titles published had increased to 10,000. A large number of the participants were Chinese literati who are well-represented in the Chinese vocabulary literature both in the past and present. As a result, the Chinese vocabulary literature has also responded to the MLMs, which is reflected in the fact that with the MLMs, the literary input has not generated a language
