

Figure 1. Schematic diagram of the experimental setup.

The subject was seated at a table, viewing a video screen. A camera was positioned above the screen. A light source was positioned to the left of the screen. The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.

The subject was instructed to maintain a constant distance from the screen throughout the experiment.